

In 2003, it was the Kelowna Fire that sparked the discussion.....

Drought, forest fires and floods in 2003 created a ‘teachable year’ for change

Satellite imagery of forest fires in the Okanagan Basin

“The year's top weather story wasn't one single event. Instead, it was a year-long parade of weather disasters that befouled British Columbia.”

“Given what happened in 2003, more people than ever became convinced that climate change is real.”

Environment Canada website
2003 Top Ten Weather Stories

