We would like to present a proposal to investigate potential land use impacts on local freshwater resources (surface & groundwater).

This would target a specific candidate area within Parksville City limits that is of direct interest to the on-going OCP Review process.

The proposal requires no direct financial support from the City as external funds from BCCF are available to hire engineering consultants.

Consultants will model different development scenarios (type/scale), and their effects on local water supply and quality with climate change.

Results of this study should be "value-added" to the current OCP review and assist the Mayor & Council in supporting future land use decisions.

If approved by the Committee, the study would take place over the next 3 months with final reporting due in April 2012.

This project directly supports the community climate change adaptation objectives of BCCF's Natural Resources Canada grant.

The concept for such a study has been previously discussed with City planning staff and the RDN's Drinking Water Protection Service.
